PRESS RELEASE

Formula One Promotional Awards

Alongside the FIA champions, two FOA Formula One promotional trophies, for television and race promoters, were also presented at the FIA Gala.

The Television Trophy is awarded to the host broadcaster voted by all the other host broadcasters for having produced the best coverage of an event during the Formula One season. This was awarded to Formula One Management for its comprehensive coverage of the Chinese Grand Prix.

The race was one of the most thrilling of the season, featuring superb driving, on-track passing, and an exciting finish and the host broadcaster did not miss a second of the action.

The Race Promoters' Trophy is awarded to the promoter who has proved most helpful, in the most difficult conditions. This went to the promoters of the Brazilian Grand Prix, who expertly handled an event which recorded a number of milestones in the sport. It will long be remembered as a race of champions, with stunning drives from championship winner Fernando Alonso, seven-time world champion Michael Schumacher and race-winner Felipe Massa, who became the first Brazilian to take the chequered flag in over ten years.
