DECISION OF THE INTERNATIONAL COURT OF APPEAL

The International Court of Appeal met in Paris on Wednesday, December 3, 2003, at 12.00 a.m. in order to examine the appeal introduced by the Deutscher Motor Sport Bund e.V. on behalf of licence-holder and competitor Aqua Nova Racing Team Kadach, car N° 3: Wolf Henzler against decision made by the American National Court of Appeal on October 21, 2003, concerning an infringement to Article 189 of the International Sporting Code, during the event run in Indianapolis (United States) on September 27-28, 2003 and counting towards the 2003 Porsche Michelin Supercup Series.

Having heard the explanations of both parties and examined the various documents and other evidence, the Court squashed the decision of the American National Court of Appeal and confirmed the decision made by the Stewards on September 27, 2003 excluding of the event car N° 5, competitor Infineon Farnbacher, driver Frank Stippler.

The International Court of Appeal was presided over by Mr Xavier Conesa (Spain), and composed of Mr Philippe Roberti de Winghe (Belgium), Mr Graham Stoker (Great Britain), and Mr Reginald Redmond (Ireland).

The full text of the International Court of Appeal's decision is available, on request, from the secretariat of the FIA International Court of Appeal in Paris.
