WOMEN IN MOTOR SPORT

- * Motor sport is a truly mixed sport; open to all, competing and working within the same rules and regulations in perfect equity
- * Since the early 1900's many women have competed in the sport including several in F1, the World Rally Championship and Indycar, and these women have started to write the history of women in motor sport...
- * Behind the scenes there are many highly qualified women engineers, officials, team principals, directors, mechanics, team managers, public relations officers....

THE FIA AND THE WOMEN IN MOTORSPORT COMMISSION (WMC)

BACKGROUND

The Fédération Internationale de l'Automobile (FIA) was founded in 1904. It is the governing body for world motor sport and the federation of the world's leading motoring organisations.

It brings together 227 national motoring and sporting organisations from 132 countries on five continents.

On the 11th December 2009, the World Motor Sport Council, presided over by the President of the FIA Jean Todt, approved the project to create a "Women in Motorsport Commission" (WMC)

Since its creation, the WMC has received much support from motor sport's National Sporting Authorities (ASNs) and the motor industry across the world of motor sport

THE PRESIDENT OF THE “WMC”

Michèle Mouton

- * First woman to win a round of the FIA World Rally Championship
- * Winner of four World Championship rallies in the 1980s
- * World Rally Vice-Champion in 1982
- * Earned respect in a man's world not only for her driving, but also for her personality and passion
- * Manager of the FIA World Rally Championship

COMPOSITION

25 members:

- > 1 President – Michèle Mouton
- > 1 Vice-President, Randa Nabulsi
- > 1 FIA Commission Manager – Frédérique Trouvé
- > 15 ASNs' representatives
- > 2 Drivers' representatives
- > 2 Teams' representatives
- > 1 PR, Communication manager
- > 1 Manufacturers' representative
- > 1 FIM representative

WHY IS THE FIA WMC NECESSARY?

- * To demonstrate that women are recognised by the highest body responsible for motor sport
- * To show that the sport is open to women in all aspects of the sport, whether as competitors, officials, managers, mechanics...
- * To support current competitors
- * To encourage the participation of new competitors and officials
- * To highlight current success stories of women in the sport

WMC MISSIONS

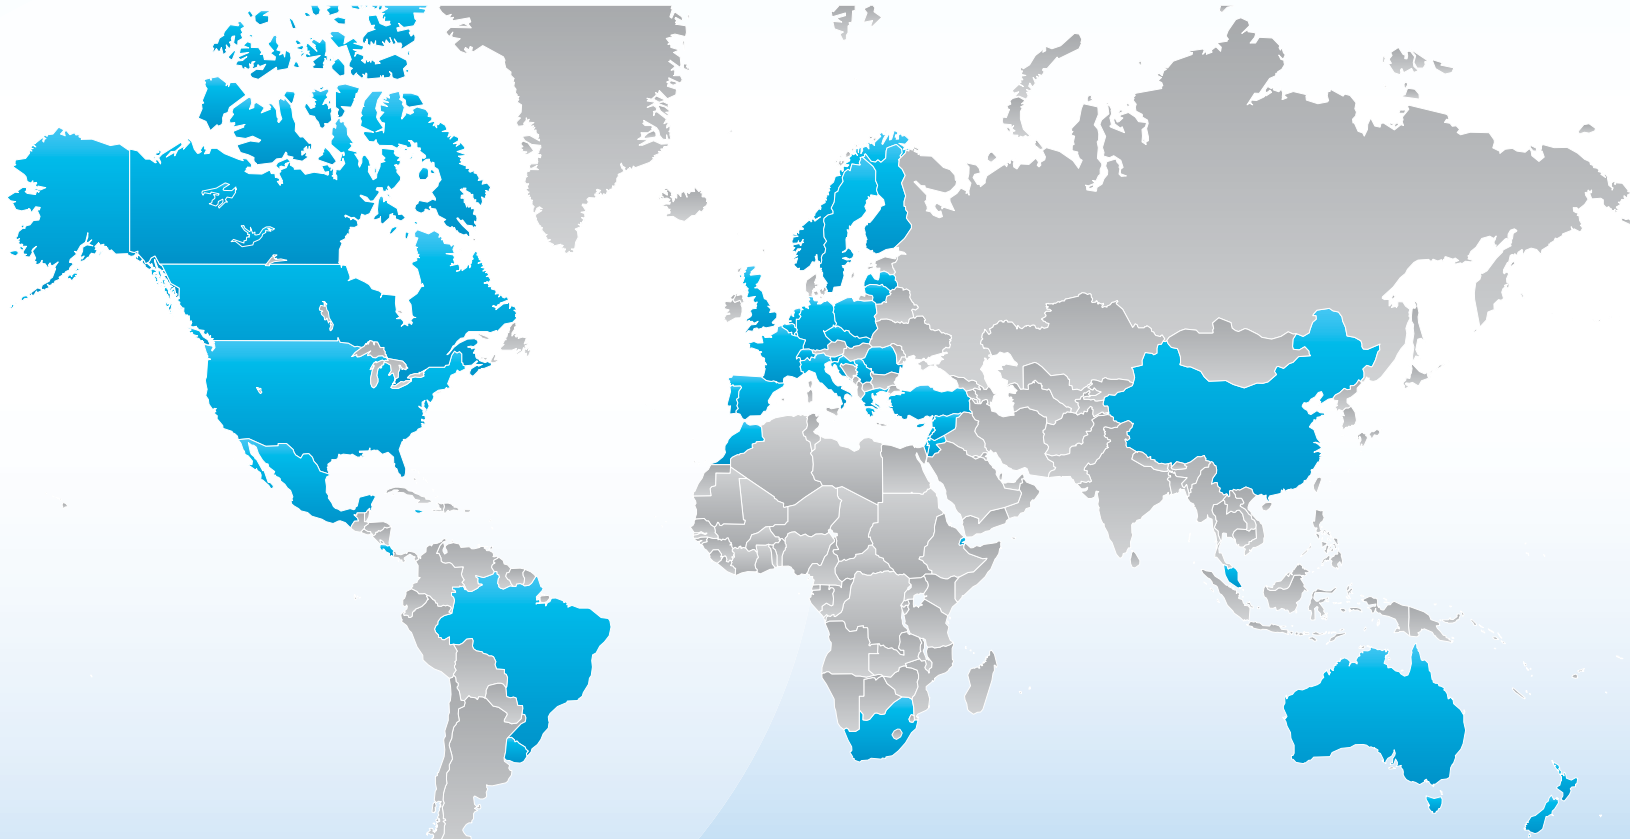

- * To create a motor sports culture which facilitates and values the full participation of women in all aspects of motor sport
- * The Commission intends to set in place strategies and policies that will promote the education and training of women in motor sport
- * The Commission will implement actions and events to allow the sharing of experiences and reflection on how to strengthen the participation of women in motor sport
- * The Commission will collaborate with international organisations on joint sports projects

HOW IS THE WMC CONSTITUTED?

- * The Commission comprises 25 members representing ASNs, drivers, teams and manufacturers
- * Additionally a national coordinator can be designated by each ASN to liaise with the WMC and to share good methods of promotion
- * The Commission meets up to four times per year, with project teams set up as required to take swift decisions and actions on behalf of the WMC

PRESIDENT OF THE WMC

“The Women in Motorsport Commission aims to create a sports culture which facilitates and values the full participation of women in all aspects of the sport.”

“There are already a number of highly successful women working in our sport, but we also need to invest in the future and encourage the younger generation to view it as a world of equal opportunities. Motor sport is not just about driving; it is an arena that provides openings in a whole sphere of different areas. Knowing these opportunities exist is all part of an important communication plan for the Commission and our national sporting authorities.”

JEAN TODT PRESIDENT OF THE FIA

“The FIA’s membership around the world comprises men and women; each has an identical part to play in sport. Like many international federations, we will support, promote and help advance the participation of women in motor sport to ensure equal opportunities at all levels.”
