

Race Preview

2013 MALAYSIAN GRAND PRIX 22 – 24 MARCH 2013

ollowing Kimi Raikkonen's victory at the seasonopening Australian Grand Prix, the 2013 Formula One championship fires up again this weekend as the series prepares for round two, the Malaysian Grand Prix.

And fiery is perhaps the appropriate adjective for this race. High temperatures are the order of the day at Sepang Circuit and this race is a true test of man and machine.

For the drivers there's the struggle to cope with soaring in-car temperatures and the battle to stay hydrated throughout the 56-lap long race. For the machinery this weekend is about dealing with tough conditions for engines and tyres. The heat and Sepang's abrasive track surface makes tyre wear a major consideration, while a number of high-speed corners places the tyres under severe lateral loads. Keeping rubber 'alive' here is a difficult task.

In terms of engines, the heat and the fact that a significant part of the lap here is run at full throttle means powerplants are heavily stressed. Maximising cooling is imperative and teams often open supplementary cooling vents in bodywork to facilitate this.

And then there's the rain. Heavy downpours are a frequent occurrence and the possibility of torrential rain adds an extra air of unpredictability to the season's second race.

The 2012 race was a case in point. The race started wet and as the rain intensified running was suspended on lap nine. When the action resumed it was Fernando Alonso who took the lead. In a dramatic final third, the Ferrari driver was chased to the chequered flag by Sergio Perez. The Mexican was unable to pass, but claimed his first podium finish with second place, ahead of Lewis Hamilton.

Punishing conditions, an exciting circuit layout and unpredictable weather conditions mean a grand prix at Sepang is rarely dull and this weekend should be no exception.

CIRCUIT DATA

SEPANG CIRCUIT

Length of lap: 5.543km

Lap record:

1:34.223 (Juan-Pablo Montoya, Williams-BMW, 2004)

Start line/finish line offset:

0.000km

Total number of race laps: 56

Total race distance:

310.408km

Pitlane speed limits:

60km/h in practice and qualifying. 100km/h during the race

CIRCUIT NOTES

► The pit wall debris fence has been extended in order to better protect the marshals.

DRS ZONE

▶ The DRS sectors will be between turns 15 and 1 (pit straight, as last year) and then between turns 14 and 15 (back straight). There will be a detection point for each DRS sector.

Malaysian GP

Fast Facts

- ► This will be the 15th running of the Malaysian Grand Prix. The race made its Formula One calendar debut on October 17th, 1999.
- ▶ In the first two years of its existence the race was staged at the end of the season. However, in 2001 it moved to March and had held an early-season slot ever since.
- In the 14 events to date, the driver in pole position has gone on to win the race on seven occasions. The first winner from pole was Michael Schumacher in 2000 and the most recent Sebastian Vettel in 2011.
- Last year's winner Fernando Alonso started the race from eighth on the grid, the furthest back a winner has started in the history of the race. Kimi Raikkonen won the 2003 event from seventh position.
- ▶ Ferrari is the most successful constructor at the Malaysian GP with six wins. Eddie Irvine won the inaugural event for the Scuderia, Michael Schumacher won the - next three grands prix at Sepang, Raikkonen was victorious in 2008 and Alonso won last year.

- ► Alonso has won the Malaysian Grand Prix with three different teams Renault in 2005, McLaren in 2007 and Ferrari last year.
- Of the drivers racing this weekend McLaren's Jenson Button has the most Sepang starts. The Briton has raced 13 Malaysian Grands Prix and only missed out on the 1999 event as he was busy racing in F3 that year.
- ➤ Sergio Perez's second place last year for Sauber was the first time a Mexican driver had appeared on the podium since Pedro Rodriguez finished second in the 1971 Dutch Grand Prix for BRM 19 years before Perez was born.
- While this will be the first Malaysian Grand Prix for new boys Valtteri Bottas, Jules Bianchi, Max Chilton Giedo van der Garde and Esteban Gutierrez, only Bianchi has never appeared on the Sepang track before. Bottas made his Formula One weekend debut here

- last year in a Friday practice session for Williams. Sauber's Gutierrez raced here for ART Lotus in GP2 last season, finishing seventh in the feature race and second in the sprint race. Caterham's Van der Garde first raced here in GP2 Asia in 2009 with iSport and last year returned with Caterham Racing to finish fourth in the sprint race and Marussia's Chilton finished third in last year's GP2 feature race.
- ► The 2012 GP was a good race for one of last year's rookies. Toro Rosso's Jean-Eric Vergne took his first Formula One championship points with an eighth-place finish.
- ▶ This will be Fernando Alonso's 200th grand prix. He made his debut at the 2001 Australian Grand Prix for Minardi and since then has scored 30 wins, 22 pole positions, 57 other podium finishes and, of course, two Formula One Drivers' Championship titles, in 2005 and 2006, both for Renault.
- ▶ Pirelli is bringing its Hard and Medium compounds to this race.

Malaysian GP Championship Standings (Drivers)

	Australia	Malaysia	China	Bahrain	Spain	Monaco	Canada	GB	Germany	Hungary	Belgium	Italy	Singapore	Korea	Japan	India	Abu Dhabi	NSA	Brazil	POINTS
1. Kimi Raikkonen	25			_										_		_				25
2. Fernando Alonso	18																			18
3. Sebastian Vettel	15																			15
4. Felipe Massa	12																			12
5. Lewis Hamilton	10																			10
6. Mark Webber	8																			8
7. Adrian Sutil	6																			6
8. Paul Di Resta	4																			4
9. Jenson Button	2																			2
10. Romain Grosjean	1																			1
11. Sergio Perez	0																			0
12. Jean-Eric Vergne	0																			0
13. Esteban Gutierrez	0																			0
14. Valtteri Bottas	0																			0
15. Jules Bianchi	0																			0
16. Charles Pic	0																			0
17. Max Chilton	0																			0
18. Giedo van der Garde	0																			0
19. Daniel Ricciardo	0																			0
20. Nico Rosberg	0																			0
21. Pastor Maldonado	0																			0
22. Nico Hulkenberg	0																			0

Malaysian GP Championship Standings (Constructors)

	Australia	Malaysia	China	Bahrain	Spain	Monaco	Canada	GB	Germany	Hungary	Belgium	Italy	Singapore	Korea	Japan	India	Abu Dhab	NSA	Brazil	POINTS
1. Scuderia Ferrari	30																			30
2. Lotus F1 Team	26																			26
3. Infiniti Red Bull Racing	23																			23
4. Mercedes AMG Petronas F1 Team	10																			10
5. Sahara Force India F1 Team	10																			10
6. Vodafone McLaren Mercedes	2																			2
7. Scuderia Toro Rosso	0																			0
8. Sauber F1 Team	0																			0
9. Williams F1 Team	0																			0
10. Marussia F1 Team	0																			0
11. Caterham F1 Team	0																			0

Malaysian GP

Formula One Timetable & FIA Media Schedule

THURSDAY

Press conference 15.00

FRIDAY

Practice session 1 10.00-11.30 Practice session 2 14.00-15.30 Press conference 16.00

SATURDAY

Practice session 3 13.00-14.00 Qualifying 16.00-17.00 Followed by unilateral and press conference

SUNDAY

Drivers' Parade 14.30
Race 16.00-18.00
Followed by podium interviews and press conference

ADDITIONAL MEDIA OPPORTUNITIES

QUALIFYING

All drivers eliminated in Q1 or Q2 are available for media interviews immediately after the end of each session, as are drivers who participated in Q3, but who are not required for the post-qualifying press conference. Where? The Pen Interviews area is under the tent in front of the Race Control Access.

RACE

Any driver retiring before the end of the race will be made available at his team's garage/ hospitality.

In addition, during the race every team will make available at least one senior spokesperson for interview by officially accredited TV crews. A list of those nominated will be made available in the media centre.

FIA COMMUNICATIONS DEPARTMENT

press@fia.com T +33 1 43 12 58 15

