

Following three opening 'flyaway' races, F1 returns to its European heartland for round four of the 2022 FIA Formula One World Championship, the Emilia Romagna Grand Prix.

And this weekend's event at the Autodromo Internazionale Enzo e Dino Ferrari presents an extra challenge in the shape of this season's first Sprint event. With just one practice session to get up to speed before Friday afternoon's Qualifying session, teams and drivers face a race against the clock to find the right set-up on a track where speeds are as high as the potential for costly error. With overtaking opportunities at a premium on the tight circuit, Saturday's Sprint could also provide fireworks and, possibly, upsets.

The intensity of the weekend in Imola is likely to be heightened by the fact that Ferrari's Charles Leclerc sits atop the Drivers' standings on 71 points, 34 clear of Mercedes' George Russell, with Carlos Sainz third in the other Ferrari. The Scuderia has established a strong Constructors' Championship lead across the first three rounds, and with 104 points the home team is 39 clear of Mercedes, with Red Bull Racing 10 points further back in third.

FAST FACTS

- » This is the third FIA Formula One World Championship Emilia Romagna Grand Prix and the 30th F1 Grand Prix to be held at the Autodromo Internazionale Enzo e Dino Ferrari. The track first hosted the sport in 1980 with the only edition of F1's Italian Grand Prix to be held away from Monza. It was then the venue for the San Marino Grand Prix from 1981 to 2006.
- » Michael Schumacher is far and away the most successful driver at Imola. The German legend scored seven San Marino Grand Prix wins, starting in 1994 with Benetton. He then won with Ferrari in 1999, 2000, from 2002 to 2004 and finally in 2006, the last edition of that race. He is followed by Brazil's Ayrton Senna and France's Alain Prost each of whom has three wins at this track.
- There are three Imola winners entered » for this weekend's event. Fernando Alonso won here in 2005 with Renault, while Lewis Hamilton (2020) and Max Verstappen (2021) are the winners of the Emilia Romagna Grand Prix so far.
- » Schumacher may have the most wins at this track, but the record for pole positions goes to Senna. The Brazilian started from the front of the grid eight times – with Lotus in 1985, '86 and '87, with McLaren from 1988-'91 and with Williams in 1994. Schumacher is next on the list with five poles here. while René Arnoux started from the front three times.
- Williams and Ferrari share the honours » for most successful team at this track, with eight wins each. Williams were victorious in 1987 and 1992 with Nigel Mansell, with Riccardo Patrese in 1990, with Prost in 1993, with Damon Hill in 1995-'96, with Heinz-Harald Frentzen in 1997, and finally with Ralf Schumacher in 2001. Ferrari won for the first time in 1982 with Didier Pironi, repeated the feat in 1983 with Patrick Tambay and then won six times with Schumacher.

» This weekend might be 2022 rookie Zhou Guanyu's first experience of Imola in an F1 car but the Chinese driver has raced here in junior series, though some time ago. In 2015 he finished on the podium here at Imola in Italian F4 with two second places at Round 3 and a third in opening race of Round 6. He raced here again in 2016 in the FIA Formula 3 European Championship. Formula 2 did not race here in either of the past two years when Guanyu competed in the series.
